“Together, we will make sure that promises made are promises kept”

“We have made commitments.

We have held ourselves accountable.

We are taking action.”

Dr. Natalia Kanem, UNFPA Executive Director .

Conversations, efforts and energy focused around a single number and a simple vision: Zero.

Zero unmet need for family planning.

Zero preventable maternal deaths.

Zero gender-based violence and all harmful practices.

MORE NEEDS TO BE DONE

TOO MANY WOMEN AND GIRLS ARE STILL BEING LEFT BEHIND. TOGETHER, WE NEED TO TACKLE THIS UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Over the last 25 years since the ICPD in Cairo, we've made great progress:

- ✿ Fewer women are dying in childbirth from preventable causes, or facing harmful practices like child marriage and genital cutting;
- ✿ More women and couples are using contraception on their own terms, to make their own choices; and
- ✿ Women are participating in all levels of society, from the workplace to parliament, at higher levels than ever.

But the truth is, we're not where we should be when it comes to making reproductive health and rights a reality for all. And so the “unfinished business” of ICPD was a major theme throughout the Nairobi Summit, as we recognized that too many women and girls, especially the world's most marginalized, are unjustly being left behind .

Commitments by Non-Governmental Organizations of Botswana

- ✿ Utilize social contracting and ensure NGOs lead in the response to ending Sexual Gender-Based Violence (SGBV) at community level.
- ✿ Ensure robust community engagement including starting indigenous movements on SGBV, to galvanize and mobilize communities to respond to SGBV.
- ✿ Mainstream gender equality conversations. Stop the silence on SGBV!

Young People Commitments

- ✿ Accessing information to help us make informed decisions.
- ✿ Accessing youth-friendly health services for all young people everywhere in Botswana.
- ✿ Engaging in policy and programmatic dialogues to ensure that our voices are included.

Nairobi for young people’s rights to be heard, our needs cannot be

We must work harder to end maternal death, gender-based violence and harmful practices against women.

Amina J. Mohammed,
United Nations Deputy Secretary-General

At the ICPD, the world agreed that sexual and reproductive health is a human right, that no mother should die while giving life, and that gender-based violence and discrimination have no place in the modern world. Yet today, the significant gains made are overshadowed by the fact that the world has failed to deliver on the promise of the 1994 Cairo conference. Those who suffer do so needlessly – and often unequally. The world has long known how to prevent maternal deaths, and has long embraced gender equality as a bedrock value. But progress has been unacceptably slow, and the burdens of death and violence are disproportionately borne by the most marginalized.

The Nairobi Summit on ICPD25 galvanized partnerships and spurred political and financial commitments to complete the unfinished business of the landmark ICPD Programme of Action and to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) by 2030. With 10 years left to meet the deadline, we have entered a decade of delivery. There can be no SDGs without the ICPD.
